NATS TERMINAL, YONABARU

SWEATING OUT THAT SHIP

ON THE NAHA AIR STRIP

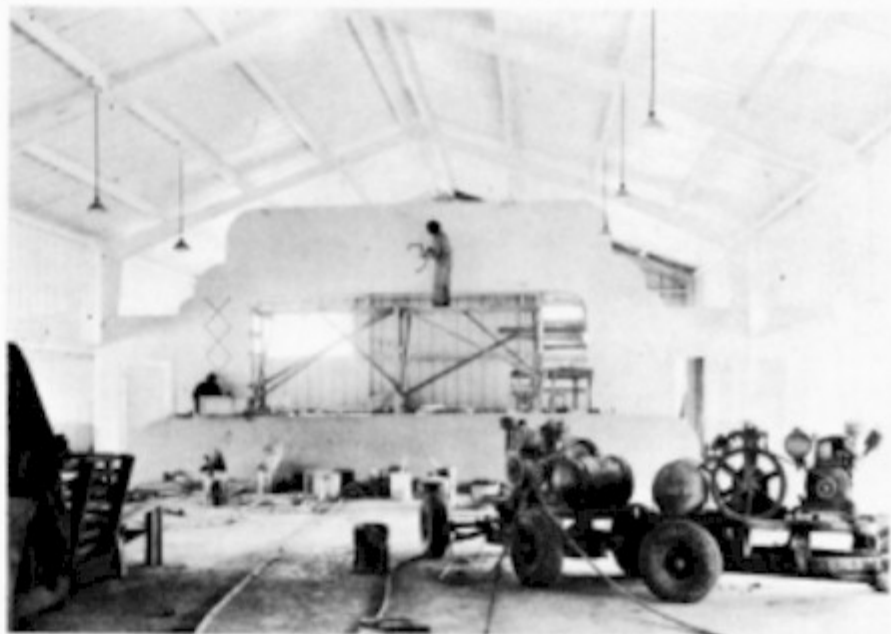

Green, storm-worn mountains, accented by neatly patterned rice paddies; colorful dress of the theatre; thatched huts, clustered together as though for warmth; ruins, the visible devastation of war; aged but timeless figures coiling through each day; tile-roofed houses, designed to withstand a century of typhoons but not a bomb; traditional worship of the Gods of Mercy, Healing and Gaiety; Youth, the foundation of a new life....All this is Okinawa today.
